WEDDINGS

FALK—BURKHOLDER

On Wednesday, October 13, 1937, in the M. B. C. Church in Didsbury, Alberta, took place the marriage of Mr. Leonard Falk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Falk of Sunnyslope, Alberta, and Miss Clara Burkholder, youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. I. Burkholder of Didsbury. The ceremony, with Rev. C. J. Hallman officiating, was performed in the presence of many friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father and to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Ruby Shantz, was charming in a gown of white satin with tulle veil. She carried ferns and carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Alice Spencer of Fleet, Alberta, was dressed in pink chiffon and carried pink and white carnations.

The groom was supported by Mr. Norman King of Ghost Pine, Alberta.

During the signing of the register Mr. Carl Lehman of Kitchener, Ontario, very beautifully rendered "Love Never Fails."

After the ceremony about forty guests gathered at the home of the bride's parents, where best wishes and congratulations were extended to the happy couple.

The guests were served with a delicious buffet-luncheon, after which the bridal party departed for Calgary amid showers of rice and confetti and many good wishes. The bride's travelling suit was knitted rustina, with brown accessories.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, Alice and Jean, of Fleet, Alberta; Mrs. Arthur Pearce, of Lethbridge; Mr. and Mrs. Will Falk, of Sunnyslope; Mr. and Mrs. I. Falk and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Foat, of Cremona; Mrs. D. Boettger, of Sundre; Mr. Carl Lehman, of Kitchener, Ontario; Mr. Jack Hayes, of Calgary; Mr. Norman King, of Ghost Pine, and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Dyck, of Burnside.

Mr. and Mrs. Falk will be at home to their many friends after November 1st, in their home at Sunnyslope. Our best wishes attend them.

Popular Farmer Passes.

The sudden passing of Mr. Noah A. Eckel, who died early last Saturday morning, came as a shock to the whole community. He was in his usual health when he retired, having been threshing during the day, but he passed away during the night.

Noah August Eckel was born at Cavalier County, North Dakota, July 18, 1882, and departed this life on October 23rd, 1937, aged 55 years, 3 months and 5 days. At the age of 3 years he moved with his parents to Walkerton, Ont., where he resided until he was 15 years of age when he returned to North Dakota.

He came to the Didsbury district in 1903 and was one of the pioneer homesteaders in the Burnside district and lived on his homestead since that time.

On March 23, 1910, he was united in marriage to Miss Ruth Lillian Richardson, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richardson, of Walkerton, Ont., and to this union, one son, Robert, was born.

His parents and three sisters preceded him in death.

He leaves to mourn his sudden and early demise his sorrowing wife; his only son, Robert; one brother, John Eckel, of Swift Current, Sask., a half sister, Mrs. George Walker, of Toronto; his aunt, Mrs. W. G. Liesemer, and his uncle, Mr. Bert Pross, besides many other relatives and a host of sorrowing friends.

Mr. Eckel was one of the best known farmers in the district east of town and played a big part in the development of the district. He was an active member of the U.F.A. movement ever since its inception. He was particularly interested in sport, in his younger days playing baseball with Sunnyslope and Lone Pine and in later years has been manager of the Lone Pine team. He was an enthusiastic curler, playing in the Didsbury rink and taking part in many bonspiels. Also interested in pitching horseshoes, taking part in many tournaments.

One of his last acts was making arrangements to take his threshing crew to see the hockey game at Calgary Saturday night.

His many friends and acquaintances express their sorrow at his early demise and extend their sympathy to his bereaved wife and son.

The funeral services were held on Monday at the Evangelical Church, Rev. A. S. Caughell, assisted by Rev. W. W. Krueger of Regina, and Rev. W. F. Krotz of Edmonton, officiating. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Percy Saunders, Joe Rist, Hugh McLean, Duncan Morrison, George Metz and John Topley.

Funeral arrangements were conducted by the Durrer Funeral Home.

There was a very large attendance and those from a distance included: Mr. and Mrs. John Eckel and daughter Marjorie, of Swift Current;

PRIZES will be given by the merchants, the drawing to take place at a Concert by the Didsbury Band and the Didsbury School Orchestra, on Tuesday evening, November 9th, at the Opera House.

There will be a Free Picture Show for children on Saturday afternoon, November 6th, at the Opera House.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Loughheed of Morley; Miss Evelyn Charlton and Mrs. Chas. Welsh, of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Claypool, Swallow. Also a number of members of the Horseshoe Pitchers' League of Olds.

Among the large number of floral tributes were those sent by Lone Pine Baseball Club, the Threshing Crew, Lone Pine W.L., Seibertville W.L., Didsbury U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. Constituency Association, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Claypool, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Liesemer and Evelyn, John Eckel and family, the Hughes family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kiever, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Burns and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pross and family, Mr. Norman McLeod.

A Tribute.

This is to convey our deep sorrow and regret at the passing of Mr. Noah Eckel, a true sportsman and real friend.

May his memory always abide.

Big Game Hunting Commences Monday

With the Big Game season opening up next Monday, local hunters are furnishing up their rifles and overhauling their equipment. At least two parties will leave this week so as to be on the ground for opening day.

Stewart Tighe, Sam Thompson, Bob Cunningham and Ken McCoy will go to their old hunting grounds on the Tay Creek, and Harold Tighe will join them next week. They say that Ken expects to bag a bear.

Bert Fisher, Jack Topley, Otto Mueller and Frank Heselson will make for the headwaters of the Big Red, and no doubt will keep up their reputation by bringing out a full quota of game.

An Outstanding Issue

With the recent announcement that the Commission appointed by the Federal Government and headed by the Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell is to tour the West within the next month or two to secure evidence as to the necessity for amendments to the Canadian constitution and to what extent and in what form constitutional reforms should be effected, the time is opportune for Western Canadians to take stock of the situation and make sure that strong and sane representations are made while the opportunity is available.

Emphasis is laid on the incumbency of this duty upon Western Canadians because, if any part of the country has already suffered because of lack of clarity in the division of legal responsibilities as between the Federal government and the provinces, it is the West, and particularly the producers of the West who have in the past few years seen marketing legislation sponsored both by Federal and Provincial legislative bodies thrown out by the courts, as well as other reform measures particularly designed to meet conditions in Western Canada.

Until this question is cleared up beyond peradventure and the constitution made amenable to present day conditions, not only is it impossible for the people of Western Canada to secure measures which they believe would ameliorate existing conditions, but the future welfare of the West is seriously threatened as long as this division of authority and responsibility is indeterminate.

The chairman of the commission has announced that the commission will not hear arguments from individuals, but will only take evidence from accredited representatives of founded organizations, or words to that effect, which means that only the crystallized viewpoints of organizations will be considered.

Whether or not there is wisdom in this decree, the fact remains, and it behooves all organizations interested in the economic social and political welfare of the West not to allow the grass to grow under their feet in marshalling their facts and making the necessary arrangements to see that their group opinions reach the commission at the appointed time and in the manner determined by the commission.

Even under this arrangement the individual who has given a complicated subject serious study and consideration does not lose all opportunity of getting his solution of a vexed problem before the authorities, for he can at least do so, if in his own organization he can persuade his fellow members that his suggestions are worthy of submission, though he may not be given the opportunity of presenting his ideas to the commission in person.

While exception may be taken in some quarters to this question being tackled by a government-appointed commission and while other measures have been suggested, such as a round-table conference of representatives of all interests concerned, the fact that the problem is not being approached in some other manner should not act as a brake in getting the viewpoint of organized bodies capable of dealing with the question, before the commission.

Over a period of the past two or three decades the West has had the experience of submitting representations to a number of commissions appointed to inquire into this or that, only to find, too often, that a mere fraction of the recommendations subsequently made by the inquiring bodies have been implemented in legislation, but disappointment at the lack of achievement in the past should not act as a deterrent in presenting opinions to the new commission on Dominion and provincial relationships.

An attitude of "Oh, what is the use?" cannot under any circumstances produce desirable results and the question is too serious and important for the West to allow the opportunity to pass by without making its voice heard.

After all the important thing for the West, as well as for the rest of the Dominion is the aftermath—the decisions of the commission and the results of its recommendations, whether or not the method of securing the information or the road through which the goal is reached is to the taste of everyone.

Grants To Provinces

Will Cost Federal Government $46,965,000 In Present Fiscal Year

Subsidies and grants-in-aid to the provinces will cost the Dominion government $46,965,000 in the present fiscal year, according to an estimate in the monthly statistical summary of the Bank of Canada. This is aside from grants-in-aid for relief.

The total is an increase of more than $8,600,000 from $38,333,000 in the fiscal year ended March 31 last and is nearly three times as great as $16,300,000 in 1930.

The total comprises $27,500,000 for old age pensions, $19,215,000 for subsidies, $150,000 contributed to the cost of employment offices and $100,000 for technical education.

Comparative figures for the past fiscal year were $21,147,000 for old age pensions, $16,960,000 for subsidies, $150,000 for employment offices and $76,000 for technical education.

No detailed estimate of total expenditure was made, but the $38,333,000 last year was divided as follows: Prince Edward Island, $819,000; Nova Scotia, $3,754,000; New Brunswick, $2,465,000; Quebec, $4,968,000; Ontario, $12,150,000; Manitoba, $3,657,000; Saskatchewan, $3,861,000; Alberta, $3,196,000, and British Columbia, $3,463,000.

International Crime Detection

Advocates Study Of Mutual Law Enforcement Problems

Establishment of an international crime commission linking Canadian, United States and Mexican police was proposed by Colonel S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

In an address at the 23rd annual convention of the International Association for Identification, Colonel Wood, assistant commissioner and director of the R.C.M.P., urged investigation of three projects:

Improvement of international co-operation between law enforcement agencies.

Research in mutual law enforcement problems.

Collaboration with European crime commissions in studying police technique, organization and equipment.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

PROPER DIET HELPS BUILD STRONG TEETH

Which is more important—to brush the teeth twice a day or to eat teeth-building foods?

Scientific research tells us that results obtained from working with large groups of children show that the diet is much more important. The diet of to-day contains so many refined foods that the teeth have very little work to do.

Teeth require exercise to keep them healthy. Unless they are exercised frequently the blood does not flow to the teeth as it should and the teeth are not in a healthy condition. Apples are a food that require considerable chewing and this is very beneficial to the teeth. Other crisp foods such as celery are also excellent.

Raw apples give the teeth more exercise than cooked ones because the cooking softens the cellulose. Some of the vitamins are destroyed in the cooking, so for both these reasons food specialists tell us that our diet should include some raw foods. One of the most attractive means of serving raw apples is to serve them as salads.

WALDORF SALAD

Peel and cut apples into small pieces. Cover at once with salad dressing, to prevent discoloration. Wash and dice the celery and add to the chopped apples. Arrange this mixture on a lettuce leaf and garnish with chopped walnuts.

This salad is very attractive if it is served in an apple cup. Select a red apple. Cut a slice off the top. Remove the centre without breaking through the skin. Prepare the salad and return it to the apple cup. Garnish with walnuts and serve on a lettuce leaf.

APPLE AND CABBAGE SALAD

Chop the apples and add the dressing at once. Add chopped cabbage and mix with the dressing. Arrange on a bed of lettuce. A dash of cayenne pepper makes an attractive garnish. Cottage cheese mixed with nuts and shaped into small balls may be arranged around this salad.

Readers are invited to write to Alice Stevens' Home Service, Penticton, B.C., for free advice on home cooking and household problems. (Please mention this paper).

Large Amount Of Paper Money In Hands Of Canadian Public

More than $200,000,000 in paper money is in the hands of the Canadian public, according to the September statistical summary of the Bank of Canada.

The August average of note circulation, as distinguished from notes in banks, was $203,000,000, higher than any time since the boom year 1929, when it averaged $205,000,000.

The 1934 legislation which established the central bank provided for gradual replacement of notes of chartered banks by those of the Bank of Canada, and notes of the latter now represent about half the active circulation.

Missionary Has Slept Beneath 500 Skulls In Borneo

Skulls of white men count for little in the head-hunting activities of the Dyaks of Borneo, according to Rev. C. Ross Diebler, who has spent five years there as a missionary. He was attending the annual convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Toronto.

When Mr. Diebler first visited Dutch Borneo, head-hunting was common. With the coming of Christianity, it has become less popular, he says, but the hill natives sometimes return to their old habits.

"There are still plenty of skulls," said Mr. Diebler. "I have slept beneath a row of at least 500. You soon get used to it."

Remarkable Success Attained In Recent Years In Fruit Growing On Prairies

It may not be generally known that dessert apricots can be grown in Manitoba. Native plums have been common there since the earliest pioneering days. Standard apples in Southern Manitoba have been accepted as practical crops in the home garden for at least two decades. Sour cherries of the Russian Morello type have been doing well at many points, and some hybrid pears lately have borne well year after year. However, as recently as 1920, no optimist would have presumed to predict that he would be able to grow edible apricots on the Canadian Prairies.

The appearance of dessert apricots as a prairie fruit is in the main due to the work of the Dominion Experimental Farms, particularly the Experimental Station at Morden, where the Scout Apricot, as the new fruit is named, was produced. In the process of the evolution of the apricot, the Siberian species was the first to embellish the shrubby border, but the fruit was woody. Later the Manchurian species was planted and from it were developed several pleasing types of fair size, smooth tender flesh, and acceptable flavour. The Morden station, which has done such excellent work in producing home-grown prairie fruit, noted the fruit of one tree in 1935 as superior and it became known as Morden 600. It had been received in seed form as exchange material from a co-operating horticulturist in Manchuria. It promises to contribute substantially to the home fruit gardens, and after bearing a generous crop in 1936 was accorded its name, the Scout Apricot.

The Scout apricot tree is over 12 feet tall. It has withstood recent cold winters much better than most local apple trees, and seems to enjoy the hot summers. Fruit is produced generously, even on the topmost branches.

Situated on the eastern side of the town of Morden, 12 miles from the United States boundary, Morden Experimental Station, as one of the Dominion Experimental Farms, serves the southern part of southern Manitoba in general agriculture, with specialized interest in prairie fruit growing and horticulture. In the specialization of horticulture, the station co-operates with home-makers and commercial growers from Northern Ontario, crosses Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, and into British Columbia. The farm extends to 612 acres, of which fruit plantings cover 84 acres. Special trial orchards are reserved for new introductions from other experimental stations in Canada and the United States, and from nurserymen and private growers.

The fruit plantations contain trees, bushes, vines, and plants producing apples, crab apples, pears, plums, apricots, sand cherries, sour cherries, Nanking cherries, black walnuts, butternuts, hazel nuts, mulberries, saskatoons, peminas, buffalo berries, elders, raspberries, black cherries, gooseberries, currants, strawberries, and grapes. Lists of proven varieties, classed according to hardiness, are distributed. The Morden Station collection of hardy fruit varieties is probably among the most extensive on the continent of North America, and the distribution of fruit seed and propagation wood to hundreds of districts in Western Canada is a far-reaching service. Since 1929, Morden Station has contributed 91 new varieties to prairie horticulture, 77 of these being fruits and 14 ornamental flowers.

Eager For Education

Twelve Million Chinese Learned To Read Last Year

Twelve million persons in China learned to read last year, Dr. Wallace Crawford of the West China Union University, told college students, when he graphically portrayed China's progress from the rise of the republic in 1911 under Sun Yat-sen to the present supremacy of the Nationalist Party or Kuomintang under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Through the Mass Education Movement, begun by "Jimmy" Yen, a Y.M.C.A. secretary with the Chinese labor battalions in France during the Great War, the ordinary man and woman can now learn to read in three months, said Dr. Crawford. Yen, realizing the coolies' helplessness because of illiteracy, selected the 1,000 most commonly used characters out of the 35,000 in the Chinese language. Books, newspapers, magazines and popular literature are now published, using only this limited vocabulary.

Chinese eagerness for education, Dr. Crawford illustrated by telling of 2,400 students trying the entrance examination to a certain school which could admit only 400.

The only dental college in China belongs to the West China Union University, said the speaker. Last year the first three women dentists graduated.

The journey from Canada to West China once required four months; now it takes only ten days by air. One may breakfast in Shanghai and dine 8½ hours later in Chengtu, the capital of Szechuan where eight aeroplanes arrive weekly.

Solved The Mystery

Writer Discovers The How And Why Of Neckties

I have often wondered who invented neckties, and why. Of course, we all know that at the present day the necktie business makes a great contribution to the continuance of the silk trade. That does not appear to have been the cause of it, it is only an effect. But I have just found out the cause—and from a mere child.

I was staying in the house of an old friend and I got up and put on a clean shirt, only to find that it had no button on the collar end of it. So I went up and waked the two daughters of the house and demanded from the elder to have a button sewed on. She rolled over and said sleepily: "Wake up Miriam, she sews better than I do." So I woke up Miriam and she said: "What did they give you a necktie for? Tie it around your neck and the shirt will keep shut." And, strangely enough, it did.

So there you are. One of the greatest money-makers known to modern commerce was undoubtedly invented because women were too lazy to sew buttons on shirts. Finally it became decorative and is now used as an article of male resplendence and its original practicality has been forgotten.—J. Butterfield, in Vancouver Province.

A Dangerous Place

Experts Define Home As The Most Dangerous Place In The World

The U.S. government's accident prevention conference believe that the most dangerous place in the world is home, sweet home. And, the safety experts added, the most dangerous time to be there is at night.

Saying we don't have to sleep in the dark, the conference called for inventors to produce:

1. A mild light that will not interfere with slumber.
2. A light that goes on when you sit up or get out of bed.
3. A telephone that turns on a light when it rings in the night.
4. Doorbells that turn on lights when they ring.

Lead melts at 620 degrees Fahrenheit; tin melts at 446 degrees Fahrenheit; yet, when the two metals are melted together, as solder, the melting point is only 356 degrees.

An Individual Problem

Each Person Must Determine Amount Of Sleep They Require

No one but yourself can make a flat rule about the number of hours you need to sleep each night. Some can get along happily on six, or even five. Others and this applies to the majority of adults—need about eight. The problem is indeed an individual one, and only by the time-old trial and error method can you find out.

However, one general rule we can make, and this is that each person should figure out what rest she needs nightly, then stick by her rules. If she wants to look pretty and fresh through the years, she must do it.

How can you tell when you're getting adequate and proper rest? Well, just by the way you feel immediately after you've dressed and eaten breakfast. And by the way you feel again about four in the afternoon.

You may be sleepy when you wake up to turn off the alarm, but you shouldn't be unduly tired, weary in every muscle. By the time you have bathed, dressed and had breakfast, even the sleepy feeling should disappear. If it doesn't and you stumble around dully and half-heartedly until about 11 o'clock, you'd better try to get a little more sleep each night. If this doesn't help, see your doctor. Also, check up on your bed and the ventilation in your room.

Perhaps your mattress is too soft or too hard. Maybe you need a smaller or a larger pillow or none at all. It's possible that you don't get enough fresh air in your room. Perhaps you should drink a glass of milk before you go to bed. Maybe you never should eat or drink immediately before retiring.

Introducing The Doughnut

American Thinks Englishman Would Like "Holed" Type

Like Alexander, the Great, Samuel John Levitt has set out to conquer the world.

Mr. Levitt is one up on Alexander because he intends to conquer the world with a doughnut. He has just established camp in London. As chairman of the Doughnut Corporation of America, he feels he has already conquered the United States and Canada too. Now, as managing director of the British Doughnut Company, Ltd., Mr. Levitt is planning his campaign to subdue Britain.

"After we've got started in London," Mr. Levitt told a correspondent, "well, there's France. Yes, sir, we are already planning for France."

Mr. Levitt does not see much resistance to the "holed" bun in Britain. The British have had a nodding acquaintance with doughnuts for many years, but have so far known only the round doughnut, which is a trifle stodgy.

Now the American is prepared to show them that a doughnut can be light and tasty, and he is prepared to do business on a big scale.

British Aerial Torpedo Is Designed To Permit Laying Of Minefields In The Sky

History Of The West

Even Western Canada Has Its Own Storied Past

The Saskatchewan Historical Society, formed a year ago and which has now held its second annual meeting, with the election of J. A. Gregory, M.L.A., of North Battleford, as president, clearly has an opportunity before it. This province is young but rich in history and this entire prairie country is likewise relatively young in comparison with white men's activities in portions of eastern Canada, notably Quebec, yet there is a fascinating record about this section of Canada and its merits the examination of growing numbers. When one reflects that British history in western Canada runs back to the days of Henry Hudson and the beginning of the Hudson's Bay Company in the 17th century and the explorations of Kelsey and the La Verendryes in the 18th, one must recognize that even western Canada, regarded by so many as a new land, has its own storied past.

Even running back just as far as the early eighties of last century, when prairie settlement began to take definite form, this western country has its history that not only is worth preserving so far as it is known but merits further research and amplification where possible.—Regina Leader-Post.

Active At Ninety

Princess Louise Keeps Busy In Aid Of Charities

Ninety years young, the oldest Princess in England has been busy with public appearances while other more sprightly members of the Royal Family were holidaying.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, daughter of Queen Victoria, once used the ballroom at Rideau Hall in Ottawa as a sculptor's studio while her husband was governor-general. There she made the statue of her mother now in front of Victoria College, Montreal. She also founded women's art and education associations in Canada and now she is still actively engaged in furthering the causes of her favorite charities.

Early in September this energetic Princess attended the church parade of ex-service men and Sandhurst army cadets, opened an Old English Fair at Hendon in aid of a hospital and had a long list of similar engagements for the autumn.

Insects are developed to a degree of efficiency far beyond man's possibilities. An invading horde of locusts can cause greater destruction upon a country than any human army ever could.

Behind an electrified iron fence guarded by a notice which warns "Keep Out", a lonely building set amid a thousand acres of desolate Welsh mountainland, houses a remarkable invention which, it is claimed, can make Britain safe from aerial attack.

It is a rocket aerial-torpedo which discharges parachutes bearing steel wires, to the end of which bombs are attached. The aim of the invention is to lay an "aerial mine-field" for raiding aircraft.

Full details of this amazing device were given by the inventor, Harry Grindell-Matthews, at his laboratories on a 1,500-foot plateau, ten miles from Swansea.

Visitors are not welcomed at the laboratory. In addition to the electrified fence, barbed-wire fences ten feet high surround his experimental station. Near the house is a landing-field for airplanes. In the house there are six bedrooms, a lounge, a dining-room, kitchens, and an elaborate laboratory. Powerful searchlights have been installed so that an airplane may land at night in perfect safety.

Mr. Grindell-Matthews in his laboratory surrounded by an array of secret instruments, said that the use of anti-aircraft guns will be futile against the bombing machine of the future that will choose their own time, fly in cloud-layers high above the earth, and use instruments to tell them the position of their objective.

To counter this, Mr. Grindell-Matthews has invented a rocket or aerial-torpedo which, using a special fuel, will obtain an altitude of 32,000 feet in a matter of seconds. At this height the rocket will discharge twenty or more parachutes to which timed bombs are attached by high-tensile steel wires.

The parent rocket is provided with its own parachute which blows out at the end of the run, thus enabling the container to float to earth and be retrieved for recharging.

Large numbers of these aerial rockets can be discharged every minute. They will release colonies of 20 to 30 smaller rockets, so creating an aerial minefield. Areas of sky can be mined as the sea was during the last war.

The cost of these rockets is a few hundred dollars apiece. This means that for a fraction of the cost of the present elaborate air defence plans any given area of Britain can be curtailed off from enemy aerial attack.

Mr. Grindell-Matthews's plan has been inspected and praised by leading aeronautical experts. The period of research and experiment is drawing to a close. Soon his workshops will be manufacturing these defence rockets.

"The first line of rocket defence," he says, "will be from ships at sea. The next will be around the coastal areas. The sky can be barricaded off at need. Enemy aircraft must not be allowed to reach London or other great English cities."

The Newest Word

Broster Suggested To Represent Brother And Sister

Professor F. Earl Ward of the Macalester College English department in St. Paul, says a former student suggests "broster" as a word to represent "brother and sister."

The Germans and Scandinavians have a word for it, but the English language is devoid of a single word to express the meaning.

An "s" on the end gives you "brosters," one brother and two or more sisters. Two or more brothers and one sister has to be "sproster." And from that easily comes "sprosters," two or more brothers and two or more sisters.

"I'm going home to see the folks and sprosters." It tells everything except their names.

November 11th.

Last year Canada remembered her war dead in so inspiring a fashion at Vimy—the Memorial itself, the Pilgrimage of veterans and mothers and wives, the participation of the King, the President of the French Republic, the Prime Minister—that every Canadian must feel pride in a duty so wholly and beautifully done.

Some expression of that feeling is very likely to be made by Canadians on November 11th this year when, with the appeal of the Poppy Fund, the opportunity is given to render some measure of gratitude to those who, one might say, fell in the war but did not die.

For that, in effect, is what happened to many thousands of Canadian young men. Wounded, damaged in body and spirit, these multitudes of our fellow-men have survived twenty years of pain and handicap, of distress, frustration and disappointment in the daily race of life, regardless of all the help government and municipalities can devise for them. On the base of the indescribably beautiful memorial on Vimy Ridge, there are carved in the solid stone, the names of the 11,283 Canadian soldiers whose bodies have never been found, whose names do not appear on a headstone in any of the numerous Canadian cemeteries scattered over France and Flanders. Thus no man is forgotten. The Poppy Fund insofar as the funds it can raise permit, has attempted to see that no man of those living be forgotten. The things that government cannot undertake to supply—clothing, furniture, the simple amenities of comfort in a home—are the routine provisions of the Poppy Fund. It also meets certain kinds of emergencies—medical and domestic. Its work is practically all voluntary. It tries to be, on behalf of its countless contributors on Poppy Day, the Good Samaritan to the forgotten, fringes of the veteran problem.

The Canadian Legion, which conducts the campaign in Canada, is only one unit of the British Empire Service League, which on November 11th, in its world-wide associations in the British Empire, is selling poppies to fellow-Britishers in every corner of the globe.

The local branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will hold its annual Poppy Day campaign on Saturday, November 6th. The British peoples have their various national holidays and red-letter days, but in the fight you make on Poppy Day, you will be sharing in a duty universally British.

The Armistice Service this year will be held in the Anglican Church on Sunday, November 7th, at 3 p.m.

Arrangements are also being made for the Armistice Concert, to be held November 11th.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. STRANGE

As I was writing this "World of Wheat" column last evening (October 20th)—something about Thatcher, I think it was, the news came to me that Samuel Larcombe, one of the West's greatest Englishmen and pioneers in prairie agriculture, had died, aged 86. I found that I could think of nothing but him, and of his splendid lifelong service to western agriculture.

"This country needs a rust-resistant wheat," he told me in 1922. "I've made some crosses and I've got good results. In a few years I may have something. Come up to Birtle with me now and see the plots, won't you?"

I went to Birtle.

In his sitting-room, which was also his seed laboratory and workshop, I saw a splendid array of cups, diplomas, certificates and medals, testifying to his 50 years of successful work.

"Tell me about your awards," I said. "Never mind those things," he exclaimed, "they're nothing," then, in a heightened tone, "look at this new wheat!"

That was Samuel Larcombe. He was then 71 years old, and still fired with enthusiasm to do better and better work; hoping that his efforts might benefit his adopted country and be helpful to his fellow man.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Only about half the Canadian spring wheat crop grading 1 and 2 Northern -- Spain again buys foreign wheat -- Some moisture deficiency in Kansas -- Excessive rains interrupt Italian seeding -- Spain buys U.S. winter wheat at Montreal -- Turkey demands active foreign demand for barley -- Reduction in Belgian pig population -- Corn loan proposed in U.S.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Seeding well under way in Russia -- General rains improve crops in southern hemisphere -- Official Italian crop estimate much larger than in 1936 -- Last year's Australian crop or "carryover" under-estimated -- Good rains give Germany satisfactory soil condition -- Manchurian wheat crop larger than last year.

King Neptune Awaits Cruise Passengers

King Neptune and his jolly crew of buccaneers will have their first opportunity of subjecting West Indies Cruise passengers to the traditional rites of the "Fishy Court" when the Empress of Australia, in the course of one of the Canadian Pacific's eight West Indies cruises this winter, crosses the equator on her way to Rio de Janeiro.

For the first time in West Indies cruising the glamorous Brazilian city, with the "most beautiful harbor in the world" and unrivalled mountain scenery almost within its city limits, has been included in a Caribbean itinerary and the Empress will cross the equator and be boarded by King Neptune en route there. St. George's, Grenada, one of the lovely Windward Islands, and also a new port of call, will be another attraction of the 32 day cruise starting from New York on January 15. Five days will be spent at Rio, time enough for a thorough exploration of the glamorous Latin city and its surrounding beauties and one evening will be devoted to a special round of the exotic night-life of the metropolis. At Grenada lovely St. George's guarded by ancient Fort St. George, has peculiar charm among Caribbean towns. During the day spent there a special excursion will go to Grand Etang, a volcanic lake set high in the mountains overlooking the town.

The Empress of Britain, world cruising flagship of the Canadian Pacific, will lead off the West Indies season with a 12 day Christmas and New Year trip to Jamaica, the Panama Canal Zone and Cuba. The Empress of Australia follows with seven voyages, leaving New York: January 4, March 11 and March 22, for nine days each voyage, to the Bahamas, Cuba and Bermuda; January 15, for 32 days, to Barbados, Rio de Janeiro, Grenada, Venezuela and Jamaica; February 19, for 19 days, to Martinique, Barbados, Trinidad, Curacao, the Panama Canal Zone, Jamaica and Cuba; April 12, for 12 days, to Jamaica, Cuba and the Bahamas; and finally, April 14, an Easter Holiday Cruise, for ten days, to Jamaica and Cuba.

Picture layout shows a glimpse of beautiful Grenada, the Empress of Australia and happy scenes from the colorful ceremonies which highlight King Neptune's visit.

Edmonton News Letter.

By T. B. Windross.

EDMONTON, October 23rd.—Political warfare in Alberta during the past week has been more or less static and disinteresting, although there have been a few enlivening incidents to keep the public from succumbing to ennui. The voice of Premier Aberhart has been heard in its oft-repeated defiance of the "financial hounds" who "bark and bite," since last this article was written, but that is getting to be an old tale by now.

Two very significant events, however, took place in connection with the government's record which are worth mention. One was the surrender of the premier to popular outcry when on Tuesday he about-faced from his refusal to reveal the text of Lunney Commission report on the highway inquiry. The report of Mr. Justice Lunney revealed disgraceful incompetence and wasteful expenditure of the public funds in connection with the administration of the public works department. It revealed that the province, aside from the above matters, had been deprived of the benefit of more than $100,000 for its roads, because Hon. W. A. Fallow failed to meet the conditions that could have been met, which were laid down by the dominion government.

It now remains to be seen how consistent Premier Aberhart is going to be in his method of dealing with his cabinet ministers. When, in his opinion, Mr. W. N. Chant, then minister of agriculture, did not show sufficient "aggressiveness and efficiency," he was invited in the most autocratic manner to resign. Now, Mr. Fallow has been declared guilty of incompetence and neglect in his department by a more competent judge than Premier Aberhart. What will the Premier do?

The second event of interest was the preliminary trial of G. F. Powell, expert adviser of the Aberhart government, and of J. H. Unwin, government whip in the legislature, on charges of seditious libel, knowing it to be false, and counselling to murder. The hearing was held before Magistrate A. H. Gibson in the Edmonton police court, and both men were committed on the evidence presented to appear at the next sitting of the criminal supreme court on November 8th.

Evidence given by Unwin in the trial of Powell showed that he had received the "copy" of the pamphlet complained of, entitled "Bankers' Roadies" and counselling to "Exterminate them," from Mr. Powell, thus connecting the English expert with the case.

Matters relating to the three bills now before the Ottawa cabinet for disposal, are not complete at the time this is written, but it is clear that the dominion government has been bombarded with letters from individual Social Crediters demanding that "Alberta be left alone." On the other hand large numbers of public bodies have written to the Ottawa government demanding that Alberta be dealt with as a part of the Dominion of Canada and not as "left alone."

One of the acts to which the provincial government seeks assent is in complete defiance of the Dominion, since it says that it is a bill "to amend and consolidate the Credit of Alberta Regulation Act," and in its last section it provides for the "repeal of the Credit of Alberta Regulation Act," whereas there is no such Act which can be amended, consolidated or repealed. The dominion government disallowed that Act and it therefore does not exist.

Much interest is being taken in the action of the Dominion with regard to the press act, which would place the press of Alberta under the thumb of the provincial government, with power given an inexperienced person—chairman of Social Credit board, who by the way, also was to have a large share of supervision over banks and banking under provisions of another bill. Certainly, one would think this man would be delighted to get out from under, if the government's bills do not get past Ottawa.

If the Dominion refuses to give assent to this Act it would be as a matter not of the act being ultra vires, but because it is against public policy—in violation of one of the primary fundamental rights and rules of British freedom, even though that rule and those rights are not written in the constitution.

But the main question is, and will be for some time: When will there be an election? Only Premier Aberhart and the deities know. If the government of Alberta was to act by the rules that have always held in political affairs and in the affairs of British government for generations, and these carried any weight with the premier, his resignation would be in the hands of the lieutenant-governor forthwith, but he has demonstrated beyond any shadow of doubt that he is more concerned in hanging onto power and position than in observing the traditions of British custom and respect.

It is safe to say there will be no election now, because the much-advertised "Blue Pledges" are not coming in in sufficient numbers to warrant expectations of victory at the polls—this despite the Sunday announcements of the premier, who it is to be noted does not now give the figures in connection with the Blue Pledges sent in. That is significant.

JUNIOR WHEAT CLUB JOTTINGS

Results of the standing crop competition have been announced by the provincial department of agriculture. This year 80 clubs were in operation, with a total of 1,456 members. The standing crops of all these members were scored by fieldmen of the Alberta department of agriculture. Results indicate that three members tied for the highest individual score with 96 points. These are L. G. Haney, Lethbridge Wheat Club; Arnold Hilman, Red Deer Barley Club, and Andrew Kovich, Lethbridge Potato Club.

The next highest score, 95 1/2, was obtained by Wm. Stetsko, Northern Valley Wheat Club, while John Hewko of Vegreville scored 95 points for third place.

The standing of the Didsbury Club was 37th, with Arthur Gooding having highest marks.

Strange Idea Of Humor

London Seeking Mystery Woman In Connection With Telephone Hoax

A mystery woman is being sought in connection with a big telephone hoax, the victim of which is Colonel Sir Albert Stern, a director of the Midland Bank.

The hoax started with the arrival at Sir Albert's home, Barham Court, Teston, near Maidstone, of a succession of motor-vans.

The first van had a mass of cut flowers, the second a consignment of electric stoves, the third three cwt. of groceries.

Then came one with a geyser and another with a load of coal.

The bewildered drivers were told that no goods had been ordered. So back they went again.

Peace had no sooner descended on the house when two large saloon cars arrived, the chauffeurs explaining that they had been ordered to take a party of people for a drive.

A check-up revealed that every order had been given over the 'phone by a woman with a cultured voice giving the name of Stern.

Finally, the Maidstone fire brigade dashed up to the court with a clanging of bells. A 'phone message had stated that the house was on fire.

But it was just another hoax.

Toasted The King

President Roosevelt Speaks Of Friendliness Between U.S. And Canada

President Roosevelt, during his visit to Victoria, toasted the King and talked again of Canadian-United States friendliness to-day, adding he had visited the Dominion so often he hoped to become a "part-time resident" for life.

He talked informally at a private luncheon given him at Government House by Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber of British Columbia.

"I am a Canadian of 53 years standing," the President said at the luncheon, "having been taken to the isle of Campobello, N.B., on account of my teething period at the age of 3½ years.

"Since then I have been coming back very, very often and I hope all the rest of my life to be a part-time resident of the Dominion."

He told the luncheon guests, which included Premier Pattullo of British Columbia and representatives of the Governor-General and Prime Minister of the Dominion, of a toast he made "to the King" at Port of Spain, Trinidad, last December.

He said it was the day and almost the hour of the abdication of King Edward VIII, and he was never sure whether he had toasted King Edward or the new King, George VI.

He spoke of his friendship with King George V. during the Great War and said they had many things in common, ranging from stamp collecting to navigation.

"And so I come here," he said, "even if it is not a good day, with a great deal of pleasure, feeling as I said to the Lieutenant-Governor, that we have come to the point, especially after the last four years, where heads of our Governments cross our border just as though passing from one province or state to another.

"I have had the pleasure for a great many years of knowing the Governor-General and Mackenzie King, who is an old Harvard friend of mine. And so I feel a particular closeness to the present Government of Canada.

"I hope I shall be able to come back and accept the delightful invitations of the Lieutenant-Governor some time when I shall have more time and go out fishing and see this wonderful coast.

"And now I ask you to drink to the health of the King."

Depression In South Wales

Every Third Person In Depressed Area Is On Relief

Every third person in the depressed areas of South Wales depends for maintenance upon some form of state assistance, says the annual report of the South Wales and Monmouthshire Council of Social Service. Despite transference, re-employment at home and reasonably optimistic hopes of industrial improvement, there are still 144,000 registered unemployed persons in the council's area. "There are thousands of men in South Wales to-day who should be told that not only will they never get back to their old jobs but that they are too old to obtain any employment on commercial terms," the report adds.

Chicago has more students for the ministry than any other city in the world. 2224

Safety Devices

Where Fool-Proof Machines Dare You To Hurt Yourself

One of the world's most unusual museums, where the custodians invited visitors to operate all manner of machines and be as clumsy as they can about it, has just celebrated its tenth birthday. Skilled operators of clothes pressers are positively encouraged to try to smooth out one last wrinkle before the press comes down; cooks are challenged to get their hands inside cake mixers before the sinister revolving steel arms stop moving.

If visitors fail to deliver the required degree of clumsiness, the museum staff shows them how, for the safety devices in the Home Office Industrial Museum are known to be absolutely foolproof. If they were not, casualties would be tremendous, for each type of machine on exhibition has inflicted serious injury of some kind in industry.

The museum is a kind of training school for Home Office factory inspectors, each of whom is required to take a course at regular intervals in the safety methods which have been devised in recent years to reduce the heavy toll of factory accidents.

To the casual visitor, deeply impressed by the ease with which a finger or hand can be lopped off, the way a Home Office inspector deliberately does everything the dangerous way provides a rare thrill. For this correspondent he first tried to thrust his hand under a descending power press. An automatic grid shot out like a kicking gate and jolted him back.

He tried to jam his fingers under another power press, but a rubber-sheathed guard leaped out and pushed his arm aside. On others guards simply refused to allow him to place his hand near the press—he could not wriggle even a finger past them. —London correspondence of the New York Times.

German Food Shortage

Reported That Country Will Be Obligated To Import Grain

Germany's food shortage, hints of which were given by Chancellor Hitler and Agriculture Minister Darre, was more fully revealed in official statistics.

Germany will be obliged again to import considerable quantities of grain, Havas News Agency learned, as the 1937 harvest will not cover the nation's needs for bread cereals. Rye is officially estimated at 6,770,000 tons—lower by 1,000,000 tons than the 1930-35 average.

Were all wheat and rye reserved for human consumption, the wheat shortage would be about 3,000,000 tons—with no rye shortage—on the basis of 1935 consumption figures.

From January to August, 1937, about 1,000,000 tons of wheat, 155,000 tons of rye and 1,000,000 tons of corn were imported. The value of grain imports for eight months was 264,071,000 marks. For all 1936 grain imports totalled but 42,962,000 marks in value.

Do Not Wear Gloves

Cuban Criminals Use Stockings To Avoid Leaving Fingerprints

Solution of a crime in Cuba may depend on whether the culprit wore gloves or stockings.

"It is really very simple," Dr. Israel Castellanos of Havana confided to fellow delegates at the convention of the International Association for Identification at Washington.

"Cubans don't have gloves, so when a Cuban criminal wants to avoid leaving fingerprints, he pulls stockings over his hands. If we find glove marks, we start looking for a foreigner."

Queen Mary Finds Error In Display At Dealers' Fair

Queen Mary, an expert in antiques, visited the antique dealers' fair in Mayfair.

In the course of her tour of the exhibits she noticed two bronzes labelled William, Duke of Clarence, and Princess Adelaide. She promptly called the exhibitors and suggested they should have been labelled King George IV, and Princess Charlotte. The exhibitors admitted their error and changed the labels.

Most Popular Countries

Canada, England, France Lead Popularity Vote Of American Girls

In a survey, just completed, of the current views of girls throughout the United States, between the ages of 18 and 25, the Dominion of Canada, England, and France led conspicuously as the nations most popular, next to the United States.

Results of the inquiry, which was conducted among girls in all walks of life, in cities and on the farms, were presented for the first time in New York, by C. M. Chester, chairman of General Foods Corporation, which has extensive manufacturing and sales divisions in the Dominion. Mr. Chester spoke at the Herald Tribune Institute forum.

"The friendly attitude of Canadians, and the Dominion's national character, are reflected in the American girls' vote," Mr. Chester commented.

One of the 25 questions asked the American girls by house-to-house, and farm-to-farm, interviewers was this: "Toward what country in the whole world, not counting the United States, do you feel most friendly?" With United States farm girls, England was first and Canada second. The vote follows:

Countries	Farm Girls	City Girls
England	60.2%	58.5%
France	7.9	10.4
Canada	10.8	6.7
All others	14.7	20.1
No answer	6.4	4.3

"One significant thing that we noticed," Mr. Chester said, "is the modern girl's ambitions. She seeks self-improvement and financial independence. She wants marriage, children and a college education, and she is willing to accept sacrifices to achieve her destiny. The 'clinging vine' type of girl apparently is gone from our midst."

The survey, Mr. Chester told the forum, which had Mrs. Roosevelt as guest of honor, indicated that 94% of American girls consider a college education more desirable than it was in their mothers' day. A majority of the girls questioned said they intended to work after marriage.

Six out of ten American girls said that they attended church regularly and eight out of ten said it was just as desirable—or more so—to participate actively in church affairs as it was in their mothers' day.

Seven out of every ten girls said it was "less necessary to get married now, compared with their mothers' day." Asked what they thought was the smallest weekly income that a young couple could get married on and get along, the majority of girls estimated between $20 and $30. The lowest estimate was $2.50 a week and the highest was $80. One girl said: "A young couple can get along on love."

Commenting, Mr. Chester said: "As a manufacturer, I should prefer to hear that marriageable girls fixed a high standard of family living, for business will prosper more surely when we have increased the nation's purchasing power. The young ladies seem modest in their demands."

When asked to fix the ideal number of children for a modern family, a third of the young women said, "Two", and about two-thirds said, "Two to three." The highest figure was ten children, and one girl in every hundred said, "None."

The survey further indicated that more than three-fourths of the young women in the United States feel today that it's more important to take an active part in politics than it was in their mothers' day.

Refuting various charges of radicalism allegedly rife among American youth, only three girls in every hundred questioned said they were "radical." Fifty-four per cent. said they are "conservative," and the remainder said either "liberal" or "don't know."

Seven out of ten girls declared it was more important than ever to save for old age and more than half said it's more important to-day to own one's home than in former years.

According to Mr. Chester, more than half of the girls questioned said it was more important to have post-marriage careers than it was in their mothers' day, and four in ten said it was "more important" than it was in mother's day to be a good housekeeper.

"Three-fourths of those questioned," Mr. Chester remarked, "said it was more important, or at least, just as important, to be a good cook now compared with their mothers' day. More than half said they had taken cookery courses in school or college. Apparently tomorrow's housewives are going to make husbands eager to come home for dinner!"

Maturing In December

Victory Bonds Are The Last Tax-Free Issue

Last of the Dominion government tax-free 5½ per cent. Victory bonds, amounting to $122,799,000, mature in December, but no indication has been given as yet by Finance Minister Dunning as to his borrowing plans this fall.

A statement on converting the last of the tax-free bonds was made early this year when $112,500,000 worth were exchanged for new lower interest bearing securities of varying maturities. Extent of the fall loan program will probably be announced sometime in October or November.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside
By PATRICK SLATER
By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

A saucy squirt of a tug leisurely towed a long string of schooners through the Welland Canal. As a puff of wind filled the sails, she cast us off, one after another, on the blue waters of Lake Ontario. One Irish heart thanked God, that day, that a great queen reigned over the healthier parts of North America. And whenever I read, nowadays, of them burning an old lake schooner to make an idle spectacle for a thoughtless crowd, I think of the stout hearts that sailed her; and the word of one of those fresh-water sailors to his comrade was better, I declare, than any banker's bond.

On a September morning that year, Aaron Peer and I were busy unloading a box of freshly-gutted herrings on the fish quay in Toronto harbor. A stick gave me a sharp dig in the ribs, and I swung round smartly to face a stylishly-dressed old gentleman whose high hat was atilt in the surprise of the discovery he had made.

"Oh, Mr. Lewis," said I, "God bless you! And how are all the folk up in Mono?"

"Ah, ha!" the man exclaimed, "I'd know that back of yours anywhere, Paddy Slater, you scoundrel you!"

Sure it was the Reverend Alexander Lewis himself, and he was a sporty-looking old fellow for a retired Presbyterian minister. Away back in 1820, he had been the first settler in Mono Township. For a time he kept the first post office at Mono Mills, and the good man had since preached the doctrine of the election of the saints to two generations of Mono Presbyterians. For several years, he had been living retired in the village, lending his money carefully on good security at twelve per cent.—yes, and, like a shrewd banker, deducting his interest out of the face of the loan. It is a caution to me how the Lord prospers some clergymen on their small salaries. With his silk waistcoat and ruffled white shirt-front, I would like to show you a picture I have of that smart pioneer of Mono, as he sat glowing with health, his hand resting gallantly on the shoulder of a gentle, feeble old lady, whose eyes show plainly she is proud of him. Now I ask you what better character evidence than that can any man leave behind him?

Rev. Mr. Lewis informed me William Marshall was a sick man, and he gave me strict orders to get back up to Mono as fast as a train would take me. I went into the Great Western Station that afternoon to enquire about the train service to Brampton. And who did I find strutting around in there, like a quartermaster staff sergeant, but Michael, the smuggler, who was now using his great voice to good purpose announcing the arrival and departure of trains. When I was a lad in Toronto, Michael's wife kept a neat little cottage for him on the bay shore at the foot of York street. The good woman busied herself renting boats, and Michael had been a sailor with a proud reputation gained by pitching a custom officer overboard into the bay. Michael shouted to me that I was in the wrong station.

The next morning I took the Grand Trunk train to Brampton, and from that village the stage coach carried me 22 miles north to Orangeville, where I hired a livery rig to drive me east up over Purple Hill. I couldn't notice any changes as we drove along, which surprised me because time had changed me greatly since I tramped away in the moonlight over that old country road.

A strange woman met me at the Marshall door. She told me Mr. Marshall was too sick to see visitors. "Tell the good man," said I, "that it's Paddy Slater."

It was a sad sight to see the big man brought low with nothing much left but his huge frame. As I took his hand, I noticed his finger nails were blue. William Marshall was glad to see me.

"You shouldn't have gone away like that, Patrick," he said to me, as we talked things over a little.

"Well Sir," said I, "I did it for the best." "Yes Patrick," he answered me after a pause, "I know all about it now—poor Betty told me."

I mentioned the war and told him about my bounty money.

"And now that you're back," the man said to me, "you'll have to look after the farm till I get round again—since I haven't got Charlie."

It was a long term promise I made that day to William Marshall. His mind drifted off to other things; and after a while he began to pray in a low broken voice. It brought a great choking lump to my throat to hear the sick man praying, not for himself—but for me, Paddy Slater. William Marshall's life dripped kindness as sweetness drops from a broken honeycomb. He was a father and a comrade to me. They make no better men than that pioneer Ontario farmer! I am ashamed, this day, of the condition of the fields he loved.

The doctor drove up the lane to earn his daily fee; and I stepped out of the room as he entered, bringing the smell of cloves and horses with him. The previous February, in 1865, William Marshall had driven over to Edmonton on the Centre Road, in Chinguacousy Township, to help organize a temperance society in a village that had a tavern on every corner. It was a lively meeting with heated speechifying and ended in a free-for-all fist fight. The long, cold drive home gave him a touch of pleurisy. The doctor bled and blistered the pleurisy and purged the man into a weakness that held him bedfast for months. Finally consumption set in. Not to spoil a good job, medical orders required that the victim be kept in a darkened room and away from drafts of any kind. William Marshall died because he could afford to have a doctor. But what will they be saying in fifty years' time about these modern blighters who pump an old man full of bismuth and buttermilk, and then solemnly tell him the picture shows that his great gut is out of order? Just because the silly old fogey has a farm they desire to open him up!

YEAR AFTER YEAR, battery set owners acclaim Eveready Layerbilt as the champion "B" battery. It wins first place on all counts.

This year, there's even extra value in this "layer-built" radio battery. Eveready engineers, after years of research, have found a method of increasing the power, without increasing the size. This new battery is aptly named — SUPER LAYERBILT.

The proper team-mate for Super Layerbilt is Eveready Air Cell "A" Battery—guaranteed for 1000 playing hours—and no recharging.

I better be careful what I say because that fat undertaker will need a medical certificate for me. But honestly speaking, our doctors do at times act like heathen medicine men. Long years afterward, the widow, Nancy Marshall, died of a condition that any practical nurse can remove nowadays by local treatment, but it was serious enough in her day to kill her. I had two specialists brought up from Toronto. After leaving the sick old woman, the medical experts rubbed their chins in their professional way and asked me for a chamber in order to discuss the matter. They got the chamber, and I got every word they said in it. Believe me, the only thing they talked about during their consultation was the chances Seagram's stable had of winning the Queen's Plate at the Woodbine racetrack.

On leaving poor William Marshall to the mercy of his doctor, I walked into the sitting-room and there I found Sarah Duncan doing mending and minding a tuffy-headed youngster who was toddling about on sailor's legs. The woman was honestly rejoiced to see me. I noticed an extra stoop on her shoulders as I put my arms around her.

"Sarah, you old darling," I told her, "you always find beautiful children to mind."

"Yes," she said, "even if I have an ugly old face . . . it's Betty's little girl."

"And how is Elizabeth Ann?" I inquired in an offhand way.

"Oh! didn't you know?" the woman questioned me. "Poor Betty died a year ago July, and Mr. Arnold is married again."

So I picked up in my clumsy arms the soft-bodied little person who was to be the grandmother of the young lady from Baltimore; and I went out through the kitchen door to take quite a long look at the rolling hillsides of Mono. The hardwood trees were already turning; and, here and there, a sugar maple, like the body of our Blessed Lord, was showing a patch of crimson on its wounded side in sure sign of a glorious resurrection.

And here I sit, a garrulous old fellow whose trials and troubles are all over, chirping away and as happy making noises for my own amusement as any cricket in a crack by a glowing chimney corner. Sure an Irishman gets a lot of fun watching the world go by. But my warmth comes from memories of the long ago. So I ask you, folk, to fill your glasses with the moonshine of the hills where speckled trout still lurk in limpid streams:

"Here's to the worn-out hearts of those who saw a nation built, and to the proud, fun-loving young hearts that have it in their keeping."

—Ave Atque Vale, 1924.
